

A day seminar of the First Millennium Studies Group, Tuesday 19 June 2018

To be held in the Meadows Lecture Theatre, University of Edinburgh

Sex and gender identities in the first millennia: Scottish evidence and its wider context

Recent years have seen considerable advances in studying sex and gender identities in pre- and proto-historic societies, but this has had little impact on approaches to the Scottish evidence. This seminar offers an exploration of these topics in a range of papers interspersed with discussion to inform a richer understanding of the past.

9.00 Coffee/bookstalls

9.30 Introduction

9.40 Gender Identities: Devising a methodology: Eleanor de Spretter and Rachel Pope

10.10 Wives and warriors: archaeology and pop culture representations of ancient Scotland: Adrián Maldonado

10.40 Coffee/bookstalls

11.20 Knapton Wold burial: Catherine Jones and Emma Tolleson

11.50 Wider connections? Women, mobility and power in Iron Age East Yorkshire: Mel Giles & Pedro Piexoto

12.40 Lunch/bookstalls

13.50 Images of Masculinity: Examining Gender Norms in Illustrations: Natalia Bain

14.05 Commemoration in early medieval Scotland: barrow and cairn monuments and their female inhabitants: Juliette Mitchell

14.20 Whose Shoes? 'Sexing' Footwear from Roman Forts: Charlotte Douglas

14.35 Displaying Gender in the Late Iron Age and Roman Period: Melanie Bruhn

15.10 Coffee/bookstalls

15.50 Warriors and Womenfolk? Gender, Burial and Power in Early Viking Age Scotland: Stephen Harrison

16.35 Humans of Prehistory: Deconstructing a gendered gaze: Ann MacSween and Emily Killgore

16.50 Mary Macleod: Discussant/Discussion

18.00 Reception in the Macmillan Room

Attendance is free but please book your place to avoid disappointment:-
e-mail: fmsgseminars@gmail.com (label your e-mail FMSG 18)

Organised by:

Lisa Brown, Dave Cowley, Mairi Davis, Fraser Hunter, Rebecca Jones, Rod McCullagh, Jeff Sanders

Sponsored by: